MOLDING MEANS FULFILLING OUR CUSTOMERS' EXPECTATIONS.

Storopack offers an extensive range of materials made from expanded foams such as EPP, EPS, Pielcelan®, and Neopor® to meet your specific protective packaging requirements. And these materials offer several benefits: they can be adapted to just about any shape, offer outstanding insulation, are exceptionally lightweight, and still absorb shocks. In addition to conventional materials, you can also choose alternatives containing bio-based or recycled materials.

Thanks to our long-standing experience, we have a large product portfolio and can offer the right solution for any challenge: technical molded parts, customized protective packaging, and temperature-controlled packaging. We can work with you to develop the optimal solution for you – tailored to your specific needs.

P

PACKAGING

FLEXIBILITY IS
WHEN THE PACKAGING ADAPTS TO
THE GOODS AND NOT THE OTHER WAY AROUND.

Each product has its very own requirements in terms of protective packaging. This is why we not only provide you with our extensive selection of protective packaging, but also our decades of experience.

We can offer you detailed advice and work with you to develop an appropriate comprehensive or integration solution.

PACKAGING MEANS BEING FAST AND FLEXIBLE.

Whether filling voids, cushioning or wrapping from impact shock or blocking and bracing goods against transport damage: protective packaging solutions by Storopack offer all-around perfect protection for your packaged goods, whether they're small and fragile or bulky and heavy. We can provide you with a suitable protective packaging solution based on your requirements. Selected products within our portfolio are available with recycled content, certified compostable or bio-based material options.

These can be used on their own or integrated into existing logistics processes. Our experts also analyze your existing packing processes and develop the appropriate solution, taking into account ergonomic aspects and focusing on process efficiency and the well-being of the packers.
